

COUNTRY LIFE

NOVEMBER 7, 2012

EVERY WEEK

---

Learn something new in style

Artisan breadmaking, calligraphy and whisky tasting are among the traditional skills classes on offer in 2013 at the new Style Academy run by entrepreneur Andrew Mellon at country properties such as The House of Glenmuick on Royal Deeside, Northcourt (Isle of Wight), Carlton Towers (Yorkshire) and Trefife House (Cornwall). He has recruited instructors such as Dorset artist Hugh Dunford Wood, who will teach painting domestic interiors and making hand-blocked wallpaper, master gilder Gerald Herbert and weaver Candace Bahouth. Day and residential courses include jam- and curd-making, lampshade-making, mosaics, upholstery, bookbinding and painting. For a prospectus, email development@the-stlye-academy.com

www.countrylife.co.uk

---